“ I grew up living across the street from Fran and always thought she was the cool girl in school. I admired her for so many reasons, and envied her for the life she made for herself and her family. What a sweet, warm and wonderful person she was. I am glad to have known her. Diana Johnson Banks.

“ Marci,

Thinking about you and your family through all the difficult days. I hope you find comfort and strength, and a voice to reach out to all that love and support you during your time of need.

"The tide recedes but leaves behind bright seashells on the sand. The sun goes down, but gentle warmth still lingers on the land. The music stops, and yet it echoes on in sweet refrains. For every joy that passes, something beautiful remains."
